Jaitley to bigwigs in finance and economics, such as Ruchir Sharma, chief global strategist at Morgan Stanley, and YES Bank CEO Rana Kapoor, SRCC's alumni boasts a list full of luminaries.

Mindful of the illustrious legacy, SRCC principal Professor Simrit Kaur has in the past six months made a concerted effort to ensure that the college stays ahead of the curve in research and academics. She is introducing value-added courses that the students opt for. Some of the subjects are big data analytics, public-private partnership and management.

they develop their voice and their opinions," says Bansal. Jha adds that there is a healthy balance of academics and extracurricular activities, but adds that there is scope for improvement. "I think we could really increase the amount of sports that we have in our college. Right now, sports is not really a focus area," she says. With new initiatives on the campus, Mirandians are encouraged to work on a number of projects apart from their syllabus. "The students and teachers are such a close-knit community here, and the amount of effort the faculty puts in to improve us is amazing," says Jha. ■

With great emphasis on the holistic development of students, apart from academics, the college has numerous student societies focused on various areas of interest, such as drama, debating, music, books, sports and literature. Students are also encouraged to work on creating social entrepreneurship models and solving real issues on the ground. No wonder students say a lot of the learning happens outside the classroom—doing projects in the real world.

Recently, a group of students worked with Thathera craftsmen of Amritsar to help market their products. Thathera is a dying art of making traditional copper and brass utensils. Designers were brought on board and the products

SIMRIT KAUR
Principal, SRCC

What sets SRCC apart?

We try to understand the gaps in our curriculum. We have added value data programmes. We are also working towards beginning courses in artificial intelligence and blockchain technology. We might introduce a language course as well.

SRCC hosts national and international conferences. Some of the recent events held were on global risk, sustainability and inclusiveness. For industry, we have discussed digital disruptive technologies.

We adopt a very good methodology towards the holistic development of students. We have over 30 students' societies—large ones by student bodies—developing the applied skills of students.

We also have a sanitation park. Today, my students know how much waste they are generating.

We offer students 24/7 counselling—both for their career and psychological well-being. We maintain full confidentiality.

What defines a student from SRCC?

Typically, SRCC students have a very high IQ. They are very adaptable—most of our students are from south India, so there is a culture shock. Our students are very aspirational, so the frustration levels are high if their aspirations are not fulfilled.

...um from a consulting firm—the best placement offer to a student of Delhi University pursuing an undergraduate programme. The college has enviable infrastructure, including a massive sports complex and a library with 24-hour check-in/ check-out. Another unique feature is the sanitation system. SRCC's waste management system is top-notch. The idea behind it is to encourage students to think of sustainable solutions for India. Students say there is immense academic pressure to be corporate jobs, which veers many with different career goals into corporate life. Students joining SRCC come with various aspirations—some want to join the civil services, some want to do an MBA while several others want to go into academics. It's this motley mix of backgrounds and aspirations that makes the experience at SRCC more enriching. As principal Simrit Kaur says, the ability to adapt quickly is the key to surviving and thriving in the college. Her advice to students is to focus on what they aim to do and not what they want to become eventually. Because what you do is what you become. ■

FOCUS
EDUCATION

EXCELLING EACH DAY, CELEBRATING PROGRESS

"Excellence is not an exception; it is a prevailing attitude."

- Colin Powell

Dr. Sandeep Bakshi - Chancellor

Ensuring quality education is one of the most important things we can do for future generations. The discipline of education particularly in our Universities urgently needs to find a voice, to set out a vision for itself and to state what its purpose should be in the modern world. The need today is to have institutions that are exemplars of excellence at par with the best in the world. Driven, Competitive, Aspirational Just like Jaipur National University which has proved beyond doubt that it is possible for private players in higher education to remain committed to their noble ideas and vision and usher in positive change. The University, ranked among the top 30 in the country by India Today, aims at being a public intellectual platform and a venue for creating research knowledge through active overall engagement with the student community, course content, pedagogy and assessment.

JNU Medical College provides quality education and clinical experience to medical students in a challenging and invigorating environment. The hospital has been a major player during the Covid pandemic, partnering with the state government in offering testing facilities and other medical care, to flatten the Corona. The programmes of the University are duly recognized and approved by national regulatory bodies like UGC, NCTE, MCI, BCI, PCI, NCI and NAAC.

Chancellor Dr. Sandeep Bakshi strongly advocates teamwork, collaborative problem solving and a sense of purpose combined with unyielding passion. Resonating the words of the great Brain Tracy, Dr. Bakshi strongly reiterates that one must aspire for greatness because anything less than a commitment to excellence becomes an acceptance of mediocrity.

MoU with KFPI under which a KFPI-sponsored Korean cuisine chef will take sessions for two months at IHM Pusa on various main courses, snacks and bakery items,” says Pant. The institute, in fact, lays a lot of emphasis on its students participating in culinary competitions, both national and international, and the faculty and students work as a team to prepare for such challenges. For instance, IHM Pusa students frequently participate in World Skills Competition in categories such as food production, food and beverage, and landscaping. One of the students won a medallion at the World Skills Competition held in Abu Dhabi, UAE, in Restaurant Skills in 2018. Closer home, this year, students participated in the inter-IHMs Bakery Skill Competition at CIHM, Chandigarh, and an IHM Pusa student won the top prize. Another IHM Pusa student won the second prize in the Swachhata Action Plan 2019 organised by the institute. When it comes to placements, the top campus recruiters are The Oberoi Group, Taj Hotels, ITC, Marriott Hotels, Hilton Hotels & Resorts, Lemon Tree Hotels, Shopper’s Stop and Jubilant Foodworks, to name a few. of the former US president Barack Obama. They interacted with the students and the faculty and gave them a presentation.

"As the institute is under the ministry of tourism, it acts as a consultant to Air India crew members and participates in their training programmes," said Dr Raj Kumar Gupta, dean (academics). "We also train the mess staff members from different defence and paramilitary forces and the Air Force in catering and hospitality services."

How do these colleges continue to be at the top of their game? "There is a continuous effort to update the facilities in the institution that in turn provide the springboard for students to excel," said Prof R. Venkata Rao, vice chancellor, National Law School of India University, Bengaluru. Established in 1988, the school was a game-changer in legal education with its focus on innovation. Teachers here have the freedom to design and develop the syllabus and the course content, keeping in view the emerging trends in law. "New programmes like public policy, cyber laws, various aspects of corporate law provide the impetus. We always offer our programmes keeping in view the diverse and varied stakeholders including industry," said Rao.

And, where should these colleges take it from here? Baliga said the senior faculty of the top colleges should not restrict themselves to their campuses but regularly visit corporate houses and companies and understand their needs and requirements. "I feel that there should be regular conversations between the college faculty, principals and the CEOs and the board members of some of the top-notch firms in the country. Only then would they realise how times are changing and in this age of cut-throat competition what are the needs of industry. In a country which produces the highest number of engineers in the world, a majority of them are unemployable as they lack the basic soft skills which are required to survive in a corporate environment," the entrepreneurship content in the NIFT curriculum. NIFT has initiated the setting up of a design innovation incubator at three campuses (New Delhi, Bengaluru and Mumbai) to drive innovation in areas such as ath-leisure and smart wearable systems. Shobhit University, Meerut, focuses on cross-functional training to help develop entrepreneurs. For example, students of biomedical engineering are exposed to sales and services, too. Chancellor Kunwar Shekhar Vijendra says that the students have to spend time at some industry in the last semester.

In fact, corporates are both giving a big push to this fostering of entrepreneurship among students and benefitting by it. And the relationship between students and industry has become symbiotic lately. Rao, director of IIT Delhi, says they started organising industry days on campus to connect with the industry, understand their problems and see if the institute's research could solve some of their problems. "If our students and faculty have a technology to solve a problem, can they as a team start a company and deliver their solution to society? So we started to work more on the delivery aspect of it," says Rao. "RandD was always research and development. For us it is relevance and delivery as well."

About 300 industries come to the campus on industry day. The PhD students demonstrate their work and faculty members give thematic talks on research being done. If an industry is interested in working in a particular area, they can start Centres of Excellence, fund these and leave their problems there so that solutions could be found. Industries can also engage a faculty member for doing sponsored research, or fund a faculty member and provide resources to find solutions to a problem in a year or two. If the problem is short term, they can engage the faculty member as consultant.

...ed eight Centres
...in the last two years,"
...saying that 50 per cent of the faculty will have been involved in some kind of a consultancy in the project. And to top it all, 90 per cent of the faculty would have done some sponsored research project in the last five years. "Because, without being active in doing research you cannot even survive in our system any more, there is so much of emphasis on research," he points out.

Professor Souvik Bhattacharyya, vice-chancellor of BITS Pilani, says that industry engagement is one of the cornerstones of the institute's educational philosophy. There is a sustained and immersive industry experience for the student, structured in two stages. The first is an eight-week exposure at the end of two years, and the second a twenty-two-week engagement in a live assignment, both organised on the industry premises, with the guidance and mentoring of experts from the industry, and under the supervision and instruction provided by faculty members.

"The model has ensured value for all stakeholders, the students, the industry, and the institute," he says, elaborating that for the industry,
the programme offers a continuous stream of well-educated and skilled manpower leading to increased productivity, an opportunity for branding and to attract potential recruits, and access to expertise from academia. The students get an opportunity to do engineering, for career planning, for overall personality development, and an aid to a smooth transition to the profession. Also, the involvement from the industry is at the level of founders, co-founders, and CEOs who themselves come and take classes. According to Bhattacharyya, a spin-off benefit is a significant number of pre-placement offers of employment.

BITS as an institute, too, gains. For
